This splendid area once recognized Clarksville as its central emporium and poured its produce into our markets, but partly by bundering and partly by inisfortune we gave away these inestimable advantages and transferred them to Hopkinsville and Guthrie; now is our chance commercial intercourse with a population which desires renewed inter-free-tributes of respect and obituaries half to recover our lost business, our lost course with us; if we have not enterprise enough to build the small amount of railroad required to connect us with the proposed system then we had better quit grumbling about hard times they are not harder than we should deserve.

We learn with pleasure the R. Ferguson, Esq., and other influential gentlemen of the Pechers' mill settlements have been in town since that meeting soliciting the adoption of that route in preference to that first proposed: it undoubtedly possesses the advantage of having no tolls along its route but those at the lower Red river bridge, which is controlled by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen here; but we would suggest to our friends that they moot the question first at Trenton.

The Trenton people were the first to move in the business and on them will fall the main burden of the expense; and we think that they are entitled to be first consulted in the premises. One way or other the road must be built.

To-day a meeting is to be held at a great advantage in buying flowers on the Peacher's mill by the property holdspot; those from a distance are necessarily ers of that vicinity to urge the planted in small pots for which purpose the adoption of that line for the turn-

Never Told a Lie.

There is a man living in the West End, who is about forty years of age, that claims he never told a lie, black or white. whipping (which we have no doubt he thoroughly deserved) to teach him veracity unless she whipped for lying. No, sir, he is a liar, and has been at it ever since, and the crowning lie of his life is this which he has got printed in the papers. Our reason for noticing it, however, is for the purpose of expressing our belief that the perpetual whipping he speaks of, so far from being a hopeful method of teaching regard for the truth, is the most certain way to make a confirmed and habitual liar of a child. THE extraordinary hard rains of
